BOYS AND GIRLS CLUBS OF CANADA REVITALIZES WEB PRESENCE WITH HELP FROM NAVANTIS

Navantis and Microsoft Canada Provide Leading National Youth Organization with Refreshed Web Presence, Improved Functionality and Access to Important Information and Services

TORONTO, ON, February 23, 2004 – Navantis Inc., an award winning IT professional services firm for medium and large enterprises, today announced that it has donated services to provide Boys and Girls Clubs of Canada (BGCC) with an enhanced and informative new Web presence. Working with Microsoft Canada, Navantis was able to provide BGCC with improved functionality, greater access to information and easy-to-use online donation features on its national Web site.

Established in 1900, BGCC's 101 clubs serve 150,000 Canadian children and youth in 429 community-based locations nationwide. Boys and Girls Clubs throughout Canada are dedicated to helping youth realize their full potential, by providing quality recreational, educational and social development programs that foster learning, and valuable life skills. BGCC was faced with an outdated Web site, which was difficult to navigate and where information was buried and hard to find. Further, the site lacked the ability for donors to make a financial contribution easily through online payment.

To address this issue, BGCC turned to Toronto-based Navantis to provide the organization with an easy-to-use, clean and engaging format to better reflect the goals of the organization.

"We really appreciate the support of Navantis and our longstanding partner, Microsoft Canada who together made it possible for BGCC to create a very professional, streamlined and interactive national Web presence," said Pam Jolliffe, National Executive Director, BGCC. "Navantis helped us achieve our goal of developing a site that effectively highlights the opportunities and resources we offer Canadian children, youth and families."

Working with BGCC, Navantis was able to help the organization through all phases of the project from vision, design, through to deployment of the site. The enhanced site now provides more accessible program information, valuable tips of the month for parents and caregivers and online donation capabilities in an easy-to-navigate format.

The refresh also enables BGCC to present a more professional view of the organization, and provides a greatly enhanced user experience. The site allows BGCC to recognize the valuable contributions made by its corporate partners on the home page. Finally, as contributions are such a critical component of many not-for-profit organizations, the Web site provides visitors with an easy-to-use donation form, which can be completed online via Charity.ca or downloaded and submitted via mail.

“The experience of working with this important organization to support their goals of providing children with a safe and fun environment to play and learn outside of school hours was extremely rewarding,” says John Kvasnic, CEO and Chief Architect, Navantis. “We’re proud to have delivered a Web presence that will help to raise awareness of BGCC’s status as an exemplary Canadian not-for-profit organization.”
